Convicts Captured. Last Sunday was an important day in this city, in the way of bringing lawless subjects into the hands of justice. Not very long ago the mails were filled with circulars, giving the description of four convicts who escaped from the prison at Folsom, Cal., on August 18.In their attempt to escape the quartette came here, and supposing they were free from arrest, went to posing they were free from arrest, went to work on the new sewer system, to get money enough to continue their jurney. I ast Saturday night, Matt Farr arrested a man on the corner of Twenty second street and Lincoln avenue, for holding up Anderson, the the tailor, and took him to the police station, where one of the officers recognized him as one of the escaped prisoners from Foisom. When asked how long he had been absent from Caulfornia, he gave himself up with out further ceremony, and was placed in now long he had been absent from Caifornia, he gave himself up with out further ceremony, and was placed in jail. On being questioned where his colleagues were, le said they could be found at their boarding house on the corner of Wall avenue and Twenty first street. Chief Metcaif and Officers Brown, Shephord, Tyrce and Sleith went to the place soon after and succeeded in getting the others. Two of the prisoners were under a life sentence for murder, and the others were serving out six and ten years. The manner in which they escaped from the peuttentiary at Folsom was one of the most systematic methods ever known. It was done by means of a tunnel, which took them seven months to successfully complete. After all four were securely locked up in the city jail, Chief Metcaif telegraphed the prison authorities that the escaped had been captured, and the following reply was received: Forson Cai., Sept 15, 1801.—J. W. Metcalf, hief of Police, Orden:—Wire me full particu-Chief of Palice, Ogden: Wire me but paracellars at my expense, regardless of cost. Will send an agent at once. I want them at all hazards. If your jail is not absolutely secure, have two good men guard them at my expense.

CHARLES ATLL Warden.

The four men are still in the city jail awaiting the arrival of the agent from the penitentiary, who is expected here on the Southern Pacific fast mail this morning.

Rogers is known as being a desperate character, but it seemed to be the determination of Sheriff Belnap and those who accompanied him to get their man before they returned to Ogden. Last Saturday night they were successful in having the prisoner went to a farmer's house about two miles from Smithfield, leaving his revolver and belt in some bushes near by, and supposing he was out of reach of the officers, asked for something to cai. The lady of the house recognized him as being Rogers and immediately dispatched her little boy to inform her husband, who was at work in the fields. In the meantime she did everything possible to keep the man eating as long as long as could. Presently the farmer arrived and cautiously slipped into the room where Rogers was and made him surrender at the point of a gun. He was then soon in the hands of Sheriff Belnap, who handenfield.

A Herallo representative interviewed the prisoner at the jail yesterday morning, but nothing could be learned of special importance. He was asked why he did the shooting, and he replied he didn't know. When questioned why he left his revolver in the bushes before going up to the farmer's house for something to eat, he said he thought he was out of this country so far When questioned why he left his revolver in the bushes before going up to the farm er shouse for something to eat, he said he thought he was out of this country so far that there would be no danger of being caught.

"What would you have done if you had taken your revolver along?"

"I don't think they would have got me," was the answer.

The preliminary examination will come of before Judge Cross next Wednesday, at 2 o'clock.

After the business was concluded and Mr. Morris ready to go back to his house, a loud pounding was heard on the outer door. He opened it and was before Marshal Whetstone and ex-policeman Johnson, who placed him under arrest. After taking him a short distance away from the house, he alleges that they offered to keep the matter private, providing they were to receive $500. Mr. Morris told them that he only had $300 in the bank, but he promised if they would call the next day they could have his check for that amount. The proposition was accepted, and Johnson, called for the paper, but of course the bank was notified not to make the payment.

The officials were promptly arrested, and at this writing (6 o'clock) they are baving an exciting examination before Judge Preshaw.
